Legionnaires are cautiously polite as Democrat talks

By SCOTT P. TROTTER
Asst. City Editor

SALT LAKE CITY — Presidential hopeful Walter Mondale received a polite but cool reception as he spoke to the American Legion delegates in Salt Lake City yesterday.

Response to Mondale's speech was muted at the 66th convention as he challenged President Reagan's defense spending plan and nuclear arms program.

According to Hugh Dagley, American Legion public relations director, approximately 4,200 delegates listened to the former vice president in the main arena of the Salt Palace. "He spoke for 35 minutes and the audience applauded more than 10 times," said Dagley.

Legion delegate Richard Kingston from Madison, Wis., said he was pleased with Mondale's speech because he (Mondale) had a different slant on political issues. Kingston said despite the influence of his Republican Legionnaire friends he was impressed with Mondale's remarks. "There were only two of us from the Wisconsin delegation who were clapping for Mondale," he said.

Kingston said he respects the former vice president's views and agrees the nuclear arms program should be curtailed. "I have top secret clearance and have seen nuclear bombs tested," he said. "The destruction is unbelievable."

Kingston also said Mondale was applauded by the Legionnaires, but noted the applause was not very loud. "The turnout was poor," he said.

Dave Nauman, a delegate from Douglas, Wyo., turned his thumbs down when he was asked about his reaction to Mondale's speech. "He is still part of the Carter regime," he said. "He is just trying to sound different than Carter. It's like putting on a clean shirt; you still have the same dirty body."

Walter Mondale faced hundreds of delegates at the American Legion Convention in Salt Lake City Wednesday on the heels of a well-received address given there by President Ronald Reagan on Tuesday. Mondale promised, if elected, he would ask Soviet leaders to meet with him to discuss arms control within the first six months of his presidency.

Speaking in the half-empty Salt Palace, Mondale focused his remarks almost entirely on arms issues, saying the country is dangerously dependent upon nuclear weapons and charging that the Reagan Administration's increased defense spending has been "strongly tilted toward nuclear weapons and away from conventional preparedness."

"In a world with 50,000 nuclear weapons, our next president's leadership may determine whether we even have a future," he said. "We all want a strong defense. The choice is over what kind of defense will make us more secure and how to build our strength to build a safer world."

He said Reagan has failed a crucial test of presidential leadership since he has not met with Soviet leaders to negotiate arms control. "Every President from Eisenhower to Carter has negotiated arms control agreements with the Soviets. They didn't do it in order to make us weaker. They did it to make us stronger."

Mondale promised each year he is in office he will push for talks with the Soviets and will begin that effort on his first day in the White House should he be elected.

"On my first day as president, I will call on the Soviet leadership to meet me within six months in Geneva for fully prepared, substantive negotiations to freeze the arms race and to begin cutting back the stockpiles of nuclear weapons," he said.

Mondale said the most important reason he wants to be president is to ensure that no future president will be forced to decide whether to launch a retaliatory nuclear attack against an aggressor.

"The atom bomb has changed all the rules," he said. "World War III will be nothing like World War II. There will be no winners—we will all lose. There will be no free world—only a poisoned lifeless world. And to the veterans of World War II, Korea and Vietnam, I say this: there will be no veterans of World War III."

The Democratic Presidential nominee dismissed charges that his party does not support a strong military, saying: "Let's stop this nonsense that there is a party weakness and a party of strength. To assert that America is divided on the need for a strong defense is insulting to our people and encouraging to our enemies. I say when it comes to our nation's security, there are no Democrats or Republicans or Independents—only Americans."

Presidential candidate Walter Mondale addressed the American Legion Convention Wednesday. Mondale said, if elected, he would ask Soviet leaders to meet with him to discuss arms control within the first six months of his presidency.

Mondale meets with LDS leaders

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—While in Salt Lake City to address the American Legion convention, presidential candidate Walter Mondale took time to meet with leaders of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

According to LDS church spokesman Richard P. Lindsay, Mondale told LDS officials he felt deeply about his own spiritual roots but "he drew some distinctions between himself and his opponent in that he felt religion should be more visibly separated from the political process."

The Democratic hopeful said the meeting after Gov. Scott Matheson urged him to do so.

Hinckley presented Reagan with scriptures—including the King James Bible, the Book of Mormon, the Pearl of Great Price and the Doctrine of Covenants—and read a passage from the Book of Mormon.

Hinckley gave Mondale a bronze statuette of a mother and her child that is a miniature version of a statue on the church office building plaza.

The news rolled on during spring, summer

By COLLEEN FOSTER

The summer's events have shown it does not take a college at full capacity to make news in Provo and campus.

Flooding this year peaked in mid-May, but damage was held to a minimum as the spring rains were more prepared. Nevertheless, Utah County was declared a disaster area on May 15, with trouble spots occurring at Hobbie Creek, Spanish Fork Canyon and Interstate 15 near Payson.

A 6-foot-wide river banked by sandbags flowed for days down 300 South in Provo, channeling flood waters east and allowing residents to drive and park on the road.

Flood preparation was so well-handled—especially in the Salt Lake area—that a local magazine gave the floods the label as having the "most publicity for a non-event."

The annual Travel Commission report that runoff from the last two years has hurt tourism, which is the state's largest private-sector industry.

On campus, 2,241 degrees were presented to BYU graduates Aug. 20. A record 617 graduated during the 1983-84 school year.

President Jeffrey R. Holland conferred an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters upon Barbara B. Smith, former LDS Church Relief Society President. Sister Smith, in her commencement address, urged the graduates to use the knowledge they have gained serving others.

An accident on I-15 resulted in the tragic deaths of five BYU students who were traveling to Boise, Idaho. The students were killed May 19 when a semi-trailer truck struck the vehicle from behind on the Beck Street overpass in Salt Lake City. The smashed car burst into flames immediately.

The victims were twin sisters Annette and Danette Ricka, 21, from Gooding, Idaho, who attended BYU-Hawaii last semester; Yvonne Jorgensen, 20, from Redmond, Wash.; Douglas Fisk, 18, from Gooding, and Nancy Walton, 18, from Star, Idaho.

Another BYU student was killed this summer in Mapleton when he was struck by lightning. K. Robert Neesley died at Utah Valley Regional Medical Center on June 2, two days after he was hit.

Neesley, a junior from Monrovia, Calif., had been active in Young Ambassadors for three years before his death.

For an update on crime in Utah County over the summer, see page 3.

The summer brought some changes for the student government of ASBYU. In mid-May, newly elected Academics Office Vice President Rob Park resigned after re-evaluating his priorities. ASBYU President Rob Miller and Vice President Steve Colton selected Gary Ogden to replace Park, and the council ratified the decision.

Ogden, a senior from Richmond, Calif., majored in English, lost to Park by only 23 votes in the election.

Two ASBYU vice presidents were meeting: Rob (Miller) and I felt very good about the budget. We placed a stronger emphasis on earning more revenues rather than cutting more programs. That way we won't sacrifice any service the students deserve.

Finance Vice President Dave Conger and Social Vice President Jeff Havranek exhibited behavior not in keeping with BYU standards and inappropriate for ASBYU officers.

The officers appeared unsuccessfully by the University Standards Review Board.

Havranek and Conger were not present as the ASBYU Executive Council settled the 1984-85 budget. The budget is composed of a $383,300 allotment from the administration and $55,800 in projected revenues from activities.

Colton said after the five-hour meeting: "Rob (Miller) and I felt very good about the budget. We placed a stronger emphasis on earning more revenues rather than cutting more programs. That way we won't sacrifice any service the students deserve."

Advisement for ASBYU was shut-off at the beginning of June, with Tom Kallianski, John Call, Susan Peterson and Jean Taylor appointed as new advisers. Ryan L. Thomas will remain the director of Student Activities.

James Kimmel, the former assistant director of Student Activities, was moved to the Academic Standards Office. Robert Thornrock, formerly the coordinator of Student Organizations, was assigned to University Standards.

Also in June, former Associate Dean of Student Life Maren M. Mounstien was appointed executive assistant to Holland.

She replaced Dr. Carolyn J. Rasmussen, who was granted a leave of absence as administrative assistant to Continued on page 2

Summer drenching causes record-breaking weather

By COLLEEN FOSTER

Things look a little greener than normal around Provo after one of the wettest summers ever recorded has soaked the area during the past three months, weather officials say.

Rainfall in June and July caused changes in the city's record books, with more than 4 inches measured in June and 2.8 inches in July, said David James, monitor of the National Weather Service station in Provo. August rain was also well above normal.

The water year (from Oct. 1 to Sept. 30) total stands at 30.19 inches, already marking the second wettest year since 1890 when records were first kept. With a month to go, James said, a very possible last year's record of 32.31 inches may be broken.

The average rainfall per water year in Provo is 14.53 inches.

"Most of May was dry, and that's the thing that saved us from really bad flooding," James said. A late April snowstorm that dropped 10 inches in the area coupled with more rain in May would have caused many more problems, he added.

James explained the wet weather is part of a trend, or weather cycle, that has been occurring for two or three years. He predicts the trend will continue this fall.

"Because of all the rain, it should be beautiful in the canyon," he said.

Other unusual weather events were also recorded this summer. Provo residents viewed spectacular lightning shows, especially during the evening of July and August, in an abundance of thunderstorms. There were 36 summer days with storms; the average number is 20.

One storm on Aug. 13 brought a tornado to Utah County. The twister was sighted during the evening south of Provo, while winds of 89 mph were measured from the top of the Kimball Tower.

Provoans saw their share of hot, sunny days, too. A high temperature of 101 degrees hit the valley on June 29 and July 6. In general, however, "summer days were a bit cooler than normal," James said. "But nights were much warmer than usual because of the cloud cover."

The temperature was 36 degrees in early June.

Shuttle makes triumphal landing after successful 6-day voyage

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — With the national anthem booming over loud speakers, America's third space shuttle swooped flawlessly to its first landing Wednesday and put the space program back on track.

"I think only in America can we make things like this happen," said mission commander Henry Hartsfield.

Speedy Discovery flashed out of an orange smokes and brought its six-member crew to a smooth touchdown after a six-day orbital voyage that covered 2.48 million miles, clearing the way for a shuttle launch a month for the rest of this year.

Hartsfield, co-pilot Michael Coats and crew members Judy Resnik, Steven Hawley, Richard Mulane and Charles Walker landed triumphantly out of the spaceship, got a quick medical checkup and flew on to Houston.

They brought back a secret hormone purified and concentrated in weightlessness by a commercial biological processor. The material was to be flown to St. Louis in a stainless steel vat for initial processing.

Walker, who operated the medicine maker for McDonnell Douglas, thanked NASA "for a tremendous opportunity to see what we as humanity can do out there."

Left in space were three communications satellites, the most ever launched on a single shuttle mission. Each was reported working normally in its proper orbit. They were the first launched by a shuttle since the double failure of two similar satellites last February because of rocket trouble.

Before leaving this base where 10 of 12 shuttle missions have ended, the six space flyers thanked NASA and Air Force workers for their support. "I'd just like to thank everybody for the opportunity I just had to have the experience of a lifetime," said Coats.

"Flying a space shuttle is just an incredible experience."

Discovery returned from space showing the tell-tale discoloration of its fiery dive into the atmosphere, but was reported in "beautiful" condition by Jesse Moore, associate NASA administrator for space flight.

"I just can't say enough about this magnificent flying machine," Moore said after the 6:38 a.m. PDT landing.

"This flight brings us back on schedule again so that starting in October, we will essentially be launching once a month through the rest of the year."

The two satellite failures in February disrupted the program and then June's unprecedented launch pad fire for Discovery added to the problem.

Two of the three satellites launched by Discovery used rocket motors identical to the two that failed in February. Moore said this "gives us all confidence in the rocket motors."

Discovery's veteran sister ship Challenger is scheduled to take off from Cape Canaveral, Fla., Oct. 1 on the next shuttle mission. Discovery is to fly again Nov. 2 with its crew attempting to rescue the two satellites that were stranded in the wrong orbit in February.

Challenger will make the sixth and last flight of this year when it takes off Dec. 8 on a secret military mission.

Ardeh G. Kapp, new president of the Young Women's organization of the LDS Church.

Two women were appointed to the BYU's board of trustees during the summer. Added to the 12-member board were President Kapp and Barbara Woodhead Winder of Salt Lake City, named in April as the president of the Relief Society of the LDS Church.

A BYU student will represent the state as Miss Utah for 1984. Sharlene Wells, 1983 BYU Homecoming queen, was selected from 66 young women who competed for the state title June 16 in Green.

Wells, daughter of Elder Robert G. and Helen Wells, is a sophomore from Salt Lake City, majoring in communications/broadcasting. She will compete this month for the crown of Miss America.

At the top of the summer sports news was the NBA draft of former BYU basketball star Devin Durrant. Durrant, to the surprise of many, was left out of the first round. But he wasn't far off; he signed with the Indiana Pacers as the first selection in the second round.

Former BYU player Brett Applegate was taken in the fourth round by the Portland Trail Blazers.

University Police prepared for any major emergency

By ALVIN SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Emergencies at BYU are not a common day occurrence, but according to Chief Robert Kelshaw of the University Police, the university stands ready to deal with any situation.

In the history of BYU the occurrence of any type of civil disturbance or major emergency has been minimal, but the police have always been prepared for any such emergency.

In the late 60s and early 70s, the university was equipped with a tactical team of five men trained to deal with any type of civil disturbance, disorderly action, snipers, hostages or bomb threats.

It was discovered in later years that it would be more useful to initiate a program that would better serve the students and faculty staff. Because of this need, Dalin Oaks, former president of BYU, requested a plan be outlined to make all-around safety paramount. The plan was titled, "The Emergency Preparedness Plan."

According to Kelshaw, the Emergency Preparedness Plan created four teams, composed of five men each, who are trained to deal quickly with emergencies as they occur. They are trained in nine general types of emergencies: hazardous material, floods, earthquakes, nuclear spills, fires, weather extremes, civil defense, epidemics and energy failure.

In the case an emergency does occur, University Police ask the cooperation of students and faculty in order to make the plan run smoothly, Kelshaw said.

For example, suppose someone receives a phone call saying a bomb has been planted in his office. The correct procedure is not to panic, but to call the police immediately. The caller should first give his name, where he is and the nature of the emergency. He must not touch anything in the area, but wait until the officers have arrived.

In the case that expert help is required, the University Police maintain a close relationship with the Provo City Police, the Utah County Sheriff's Department and the military.

The Emergency Preparedness Plan does not only deal with criminal oriented problems, but is also responsible for dealing with safety in the case of a natural disaster.

The plan is organized and administered by a committee of employees from each of the major auxiliary departments of the university. Chairman of the committee is John Stohltz, assistant executive vice president of Auxiliary Services.

"We try to develop plans that would deal with disasters particular to this area," Stohltz said. "These plans are of such a nature that they can be applied to most any situation that could occur."

Crime update for Utah County

By STEVE GARDNER
City Editor

Life has been less than peaceful for residents of Central Utah this summer.

It began in late April when a 25-year-old wife and mother left to go jogging and never returned.

bound to jog her normal route. The dog was found on a street near the route, but Page's whereabouts remained a mystery until two weeks ago when search crews found the main part of Page's body.

On May 27 Robert Mann was traveling east through Salt Creek Canyon near Nephi when his vehicle was peppered with bullets. Mann pulled over and after exiting the vehicle was hit once again in the back.

Two nurses saw the shooting — one stayed to help Mann and the other went one mile farther to a KOA campground to call sheriffs.

Police found Roger Midgety on a hill near the incident and also found a rifle belonging to Midgety.

Midgety was the boyfriend of Patty Mann, daughter of Robert Mann. After police found a business card belonging to Miss Mann, she was arrested along with Midgety in connection with the sniper shooting.

Mr. Mann had apparently been taking advantage of the three-day Memorial Day weekend to visit his daughter attending school at Snow College.

Miss Mann testified she and Midgety were trying to scare her father away. She said her father had raped her when she was 15 and had been involved in incestuous relations since then.

Mr. Mann, refusing to comment on the accusation of incest, taking the Fifth Amendment right to refuse testimony against himself.

A seven-woman, one-man jury later gave Patty Mann an acquittal of her conspiracy to commit second-degree murder charges.

The trial for charges against Midgety began Monday.

The most recent incident involved a murder of a former BYU student and her infant daughter in American Fork in July.

A commotion was overheard July 24 at approximately 3 p.m. at the home of Allen Lafferty in American Fork. Four men were later seen leaving the house in a green station wagon.

Lafferty returned home from his "gden work at approximately 7:35 p.m. to find his 24-year-old wife, Brenda, and 15-month-old daughter, Erica, slashed to death.

Police immediately began a search for Ronald and Daniel Lafferty and two other men.

Rumors about the killing being religiously motivated circled after the murders, because of lies the two Lafferty brothers were said to have with a polygamous organization.

It has since been discovered Brenda supported a divorce decision made by Ron Lafferty's ex-wife. Ron Lafferty has repeatedly blamed the divorce on the influence of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Police also discovered a piece of paper, later determined to be "revocation" Lafferty reported to receive authorizing himself to kill Brenda and Erica Lafferty and two other people.

Police will not say who the other two people are, but the homes of Chloe Low and Richard Stowe were burglarized the same day as the murders.

Low had also supported Ron Lafferty's ex-wife in her decision to divorce from Ron Lafferty. Stowe is the current stake president of the Highland Stake for the LDS Church and presided over excommunication hearings against Ron Lafferty.

Two men were arrested in Cheyenne, Wyo., July 30, after the vehicle described as the one used to leave the incident in American Fork was spotted.

Police arrested Ricky Martin Knapp, 24, Wichita, Kan., and 23-year-old Charles Allen "Chip" Carnes in Cheyenne. They have been charged with two counts of murder, two counts of conspiracy to murder, and two counts of burglary.

The Lafferty's were apprehended in Reno, Nev., on Aug. 7. The two had apparently been in Reno earlier in the summer to do some work and were returning to visit a friend of Ron Lafferty.

The Laffertys attempted to keep the trial in Nevada. They said they could not receive a fair trial in Utah because of the LDS Church's influence.

On Aug. 17 Judge Roy Torvorn of the Washoe District in Reno ordered the extradition of the Lafferty brothers.

The Laffertys say they will defend themselves. Dan Lafferty said, "We don't want to assume counsel because it would appear we were incompetent to represent ourselves." They have, however, accepted the help of a public defender to help them understand legal proceedings.

Preliminary hearings for the Laffertys will begin Monday. The Laffertys had earlier asked for a review of the grand jury instead of the preliminary hearings, but Wayne Watson, chief Utah County deputy attorney, said the preliminary hearing was a good substitution for the grand jury indictment and said it provided greater rights under the constitution.

After the arraignment, the Lafferty's issued a press statement which read, "We have been abused and falsely accused and portrayed to be dangerous criminals which we are not. We are not guilty of the crimes for which we have been accused over the past few years."

"I have a great hope however that our lives won't be taken."

Chernenko ends absence, dismisses fears

By JEAN ESPLIN
Senior Reporter

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Konstantin Chernenko appeared Wednesday at a Kremlin ceremony to honor Soviet cosmonauts, ending a 54-day absence during which fears were raised that he was seriously ill.

Chernenko, 72, was last seen at a Moscow meeting July 13 with U.S. General Secretary Javier Perez de Cuellar. Two days later, the official Soviet news agency Tass announced he was on vacation.

Wednesday's ceremony, reported by Tass, was closed to Western journalists. However, Tass released a photograph showing Chernenko standing unaided and applauding the cosmonauts during the ceremony.

Chernenko presented the Soviet Union's highest awards to cosmonauts Vladimir Dzhanibekov, Svetlana Savitskaya and Igor Volk, who spent 12 days aboard the Salyut-7 space station in July, Tass said.

Check policy still same

By JEAN ESPLIN
Senior Reporter

While BYU will continue putting holds on the records of students who write bad checks on campus, it is unlikely that it will revive the 1960 practice of putting a hold on the records of students who write bad checks downtown, according to Michael Whitaker, director of University Standards.

Earlier this week, the Provo Daily Herald reported that a BYU representative had told the Downtown Retail Merchants Association it was possible that BYU would revive the practice.

However, Whitaker said, BYU had no plans to begin such a practice at present, saying it would be too involved a task for University Standards office at present.

"Bad check writing would be part of the honor code, yes, but with a two-man staff and the volume of work of such a program was instituted, we'd have to have a big building," Whitaker told the Herald.

Later, Whitaker said that while he was concerned about the problem and had not intended to sound so uninterested and uncooperative, the university has no plans at present to institute the practice.

Murderers await execution verdict

STARKE, Fla. (UPI) — Two murderers waited a few paces from Florida's electric chair Wednesday to learn whether federal judges in Miami and Atlanta would block their executions this week.

The case of Ernest John Dobbert Jr., convicted of killing two of his own children, was before the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta. The appeals court Tuesday granted him a stay that ends two hours before his death warrant expires at noon Friday, or sooner upon "further notice of this court."

U.S. District Judge James King in Miami was expected to rule Wednesday on an appeal by Nellie Lee Martin, who was condemned to die Thursday morning for the 1977 sexual assault and murder of a Delray Beach convenience store clerk.

Dobbert, 45, and Martin, 35, were scheduled to die at 7 a.m. Thursday in what would have been the nation's first double execution in 19 years.

Dobbert's attorneys argued damaging testimony given by the man's battered son, Ernest John Dobbert III, was the product of mind-altering drugs and hypnosis sessions given the boy after he ran away from home, scarred and nearly blinded by beatings.

At one time, BYU did put a hold on students' records but the practice was discontinued in the 60s.

Eugene Buckner, the BYU liaison who met with the merchants' group, is presently on leave from the university, according to the university personnel department.

"Mr. Buckner was employed temporarily as a liaison for BYU and we asked him to meet with downtown merchants to see how bad the problem (of bad checks) was. Now, he is no longer working for us," Whitaker said.

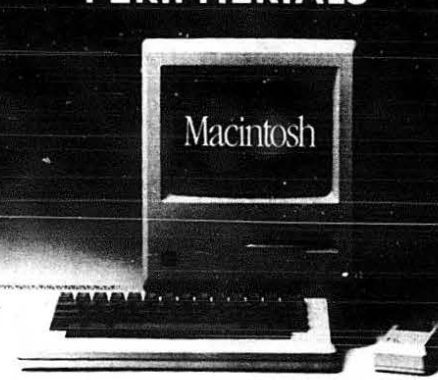

Whitaker also said he did not believe the university would continue to pursue the matter. "I think the problems were just a matter of poor communication," he said.

Will Feller, president of the merchants' association, agreed. "I think there was just some misunderstanding," he said.

Feller said he is reluctant to say more on the matter without having discussed the situation with Buckner or someone from the university.

Presently, the university puts a temporary hold on student records and charges them a $7 fee if they write a bad check at the university. There are no formal actions taken against a student who writes a bad check anywhere else.

Technology is 'double-edged'

Computers change more than the sound of music

NEW YORK (UPI) — Human League helped launch the "technopop" revolution in music two years ago with the computer-engineered No. 1 hit "Don't You Want Me." The band says it since has found technology is a double-edged sword.

The use of computers is more than a change in the way music sounds, keyboardist and guitarist Ian Burden points out. It dramatically changes the relationship between musician and musical instrument.

"Prior to sequences and computers, in order to get an idea across you had to learn to play an instrument," Burden said in a recent interview, seated next to singer Susanne Sulley.

"You can write songs, you can think up tunes in your head, and if you can't play an instrument, then computers are there to enable you to do it," he said. "So a lot of people who might have been restricted by not being able to play before, but who had good ideas, can do something."

Many musicians have become computer programmers who can digitally create virtually any musical sound and instruct the machine to play it in perfect time.

The technology has spawned pop bands — hence the phrase "technopop" — whose songs are heavy on perfect synchronization, most notably Human League and the Eurythmics, whose first big hit was "Sweet Dreams (Are Made of This)."

While the new technology opens new possibilities, it also poses unique problems for bands who have never had to rely on their ability to play instruments.

When Human League launched an American tour to back up "Don't You Want Me" and their gold LP, "Dare," the sextet had "a bit of a problem" because their proficiency at actually playing music was limited, Burden said.

"The first thing we ever did was to make a record," he said. "There hadn't been that work and playing together as a group before making the record."

Their inexperience, combined with the need to recreate their "technopop" sound, chained them to the Linn drum computer.

"We managed to program things up beforehand so it was sequenced," Sulley said. "If your audience has a good time and you're having a good time, with the Linn, you're restricted. You've got to play to the time that the Linn is playing at."

"You can't speed up, whereas if you've got a drummer and you can sort of feel what the audience is giving back, you can speed it up and it gives a bit more excitement."

Burden added, "The natural tendency, for example, when you come to a chorus is to shift the speed up a bit. Gradually, throughout the song, you speed up, very, very slightly, faster and faster toward the end — which with the Linn computer, you're locked into the tempo. You can't get out."

Perhaps as a reaction to that experience, the band's follow-up LP, "Hysteria," uses more traditional instruments as well as computers.

And when Human League tours next they expect to "have things completely live," Burden said.

It is not yet clear whether the change in approach has paid off. Three weeks after its release, the new album ranked 66th on Billboard's chart of top LPs and tapes.

More than two years passed between the release of "Dare" and "Hysteria." In the United States, fans got "Fascination," an LP with a couple new songs and material previously unreleased in this country. Fans in Britain got nothing.

The gap, Sulley said, "was quite traumatic."

The band parted ways with producer Martin Rushent (they say they dumped him, he says he walked out), whose computer smarts virtually made him a seventh member of the band, and went in search of a suitable replacement.

Months later, they settled on veteran dial-twister Chris Thomas, whose credits include the Pretenders and Elton John. Six months later, all but the vocal tracks were done and Thomas had to leave for a contractual commitment.

In February 1984, two years after "Dare" was released, pinch-hit producer Hugh Padgham got the finishing touches on "Hysteria."

After that experience, Sulley said, "We're capable of doing everything."

ELTON JOHN

Year's first concert to feature Elton John

British pop singer Elton John, who has sold more than 80 million records during his career, including "Crocodile Rock," "Rocket Man," and his current hit, "Sad Songs," will be performing at BYU's Marriott Center today. Tickets above concourse are still available for the 8 p.m. show. The BYU performance will be part of John's 1984 world tour, which has included record-breaking concerts and a television appearance in Australia.

Orchestra still has openings in strings

Dr. Ralph G. Laycock, director of orchestras, announced Wednesday there are still openings for all strings in three orchestras sponsored by the Music Department.

Advanced instrumentalists will find the Philharmonic Orchestra to be challenging and fulfilling, Laycock said. The Philharmonic will be performing during this year's Homecoming events and for this semester's opera.

Laycock said instrumentalists of moderate skill will enjoy the repertoire of the Symphony Orchestra. Both of these auditioned groups meet Monday and Wednesday from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. in rooms E-250 and E-251 HFAC, respectively.

According to Laycock, players who desire to improve their skills will receive careful guidance in the String Orchestra, which meets in E-250 HFAC at 8 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Membership in the String Orchestra is granted without audition.

Instruments are available without charge. For further information, attend class or contact Laycock at 378-4919, E-546 HFAC.

When buying diamonds, bigger is not always better

By JOYCE PENNELL
and CAMILLE CRAZE
Ast. Editors

Bigger may not be better when it comes to buying diamonds, according to Kent Flowers, a certified gemologist of a local jewelry store. Color, cut and clarity may make the difference; a two carat diamond may actually be worth less than a one-half carat diamond, he said.

The color of diamonds, according to an international scale of colors, ranges from exceptional white, designated as D, which is the highest rating, to tinted color, which is yellow and is designated as Z. Each diamond's color is rated somewhere between D and Z.

Reflect light

Diamonds are cut to reflect light. Flowers said. A well-cut diamond will reflect light enough to have a lot of sparkle.

A poorly cut stone will disperse its light, he said. If it is cut too deep its light will go out of the sides. A diamond that is cut too shallow will have light leakage out of the bottom. Where light goes out is not as important as the fact that it goes out, he said.

Clarity, the number of inclusions in a stone, ranges from a loupe-clean diamond which has no inclusions and a very clarity grading (very, very small inclusions) which has inclusions invisible to the naked eye, to a clarity grading, which means there are large and numerous inclusions visible to the naked eye and diminishing to stone brilliance, according to the book, "Diamonds — Myth, Magic and Reality."

Most people in the Provo area buy diamonds with a middle quality clarity grade, according to graduate gemologist Wendell Bailey, a salesman at another jewelry store. These grades have small inclusions invisible or near invisible to the naked eye. Most people will not pay for a higher clarity grade because they will not pay for what they cannot see, he said.

Quality counts

Color, cut, and clarity determine the quality of a stone. Together, size and quality determine how much a diamond will cost, Flowers said.

A carat is simply a unit of weight. In ancient times seeds from carrots were used to measure the weight of stones. A carat is roughly 200 milligrams.

Few people know enough about diamonds to buy them separately from the setting, Bailey said. They will often buy rings because they like the way they are set.

Regardless of the way consumers buy diamonds, they should look for guarantees so they will not be taken advantage of, he said. Diamond shoppers should look for guarantees on workmanship and materials, Flowers said.

Setting separate

He suggests buying diamonds separately from the setting. The price of settings tend to be pretty close in range, whereas there can be great variation in the price of the stones. "They can control the price range by choosing separately. The main cost is the diamond."

Jewelers can make diamonds look better than they are, he said. There are several techniques that can be used to the customer's disadvantage. For example, the same gem instrument diamond light, a type of microscope for jewels, can be used to expose the diamonds flaws and to cover them up through selective focusing. "You can hide as many as you can show," he said.

"Just because a store has the equipment does not imply honesty or that the customer is getting the best value."

Improper cut

The cut of a diamond is another thing some customers miss out on. An improper cut makes the diamond ugly.

Some people believe larger diamonds are better, but that is not necessarily true. "You could have a larger stone of lower quality that would cost the same as a smaller stone of higher quality," Flowers said.

Diamonds can be any color of the rainbow but blue-white. The term blue-white was banned by the Federal Trade Commission.

According to "Diamonds — Myth, Magic and Reality," they are called "fancy" diamonds. "On the color scale these 'fancy' diamonds begin where the slight hint of pale yellow, pink, green, mauve, or blue gives way to a sustained, pronounced coloration. If the color saturation is strong, these gems are of unusual splendor, and their rarity makes them especially valuable. Some of the costliest jewels in the world are fancy diamonds."

The size of the diamond is just one factor in the value of the diamond. Cut, color and clarity should all be considered.

Wife lands plane after husband has heart attack

MIAMI (UPI) — The wife of a pilot who suffered a fatal heart attack at the controls of his plane guided the aircraft to a "miraculous" safe landing at a remote Everglades airport with the help of a flight instructor.

The hour-long aerial drama began Tuesday when air traffic controller Steve Kallough received this message from Elaine Yadinwin:

"My husband has had a heart attack!"

"Are you a pilot?" Kallough asked.

"No."

Air controllers directed the single-engine plane, which was on automatic pilot, to the Dade-Collier training airport and scrambled a flight instructor to intercept the plane and give the woman landing instructions.

"The flight instructor talked her down — told her how to fly and what to do to bring it down," said George Brady of the Dade-Collier airport. "She did a good job for a non-pilot."

The instructor who talked Yadinwin down was Ken Winters of Cav-Air Inc. of Fort Lauderdale, who was also a friend of Yadinwin, 61, and her pilot husband, Richard, 66.

One of the plane's fuel tanks was almost empty and Winters said "I didn't have any time to practice with her."

"I had to get her on the ground. We only had one shot at it and it had to be right. She did a miraculous job," Winters said.

While an unidentified woman passenger held the unconscious pilot off the controls, Winters gave Yadinwin step-by-step landing instructions as he flew beside her.

"She had to keep the plane from descending too much too fast and keep it flying at a heading," Winters said. "I gave her directions and got her lined up for the approach. It was a very, very long runway way out in the middle of the Everglades with nothing around. I just kept taking her down."

Brady said the Piper Warrior bounced on the runway, became airborne, touched down again and veered into the grass, where the nose landing gear collapsed and stopped the plane.

A Coast Guard helicopter rushed Richard Yadinwin to a hospital, but he was dead on arrival.

His wife said the only thought on her mind through the ordeal was, "I've got to help him. We had to come down. He needed help."

The Yadinwins, who live in a Fort Lauderdale suburb, were flying home from St. Petersburg when he collapsed into unconsciousness while approaching the Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport.

Some peace and quiet

At least one student found a place to relax, away from the hassles of the first week of class. Long lines forming and flustered students running with add-drop cards are familiar sights on campus during the first day of the semester. Sometimes one just needs to find a place for solitude for a while and take a few deep breaths before jumping back into the scramble.

Homecoming preparations to present Y students to professional alumnus

Although Homecoming is one month away, preparations have already begun, according to Ida Smith, director of Alumni Continuing Education for BYU.

Among the usual projects, the association has also initiated two new programs.

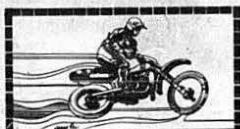

Previously, the Alumni Association had sponsored a distinguished faculty lecture during the Thursday free hour of homecoming week. This year, however, each college has selected a distinguished alumnus who will address the students in the college. "That way, we will have 10 lectures instead of just one," Smith said. "We already have a distinguished group and will soon have all of the alumni selected."

Smith said another association project will help students become acquainted with the members of the alumni board. "There are some outstanding alumni who come to BYU twice a year at their own expense for board meetings. One of those times is during homecoming."

"During the rest of the year, they are scattered all over the country and we want to arrange a way for the students to meet them. We want our students to be able to make connections in the professional world before they leave the university. They need to build bridges in their profession while they are still in the university," Smith said.

The association plans to put up booklets for the members of the board on Oct. 12, so students can meet the members of the board.

"Many of them are distinguished and prominent individuals in many parts of the country," she said.

Y yearbook distribution is in a bind

Robert C. Thorne.

Whitaker said hair dyed unnatural colors, such as pink or blue, is inappropriate. Earrings on men are also unacceptable on or off campus because there are some negative connotations. Both men said there has been no indication from administration officials that this rule will change.

Fles of dress and grooming violators are kept separate from the files of other types of violations, Thorne said.

Depending on the seriousness of violations not dress or grooming related, a student faces a variety of consequences.

A student who has committed a serious violation of the Honor Code may be "counseled out," or asked to voluntarily leave the university. In some cases, a student may receive a "suspended counseled out." The student may have done something serious enough to merit suspension, but there may be circumstances that will allow him or her to stay. The student would be supervised by a bishop if the student is a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints or another person of authority if the student is not LDS.

"Although cases fall into categories, they are judged individually," Whitaker said.

Whitaker said the rules on dress and grooming are to help maintain honor and dignity at BYU. "We would like to be a friend and advocate for the student," Thorne said.

Standards to prevail despite hot weather

By JOYCE PENNEL
Asst. Campus Editor

Warm weather has encouraged students to wear things and too-short shorts, and the office of BYU University Standards reminds students that wearing this type of attire is a violation of the Honor Code.

Girls can wear shorts as long as they come to the top of the knee while standing, said R. Michael Whitaker, chairman of University Standards.

The first time a person is referred to University Standards for a dress or grooming violation, we visit with them about the commitment they made.

Dress and grooming violations may be committed in ignorance of the rules or because of forgetfulness, he said.

"I feel students ought to have enough in them to maintain the commitment," he added.

If the offense is repeated, the violator will be put on probation. There are not a lot of people who repeat this offense, but those who do cause more concern for Standards than those who have violated standards for the first time, Whitaker said.

Information on dress and grooming standards is available at the University Standards Office and the Wilkinson Center information desk. Pamphlets have also been placed in every room of the residence halls and given to every major housing complex.

Sweats are not acceptable in classroom or business buildings, said Whitaker and his assistant.

Hebrew minor now available

By JEAN ESPIN
Senior Reporter

The BYU Hebrew program, which really began in the late 1960s, has progressively grown since then, mainly because of current events. The Hebrew program has reached a new plateau with a Hebrew minor now available.

According to department professors Deloy Pack, David Wright and Stephen Ricks, to receive a Hebrew minor students must have a background in both modern and Biblical Hebrew. After they have taken the basic language classes, they may choose an area of emphasis.

BYU offers classes in modern Hebrew, as well as Biblical, Rabbinic and Mishnaic Hebrew. Biblical Hebrew is the language used in the Old Testament. Rabbinic is from the Middle Ages and Mishnaic Hebrew is what was in use when the Mishna was written — about the time of Jesus Christ.

Many students who are interested in modern Hebrew as it is spoken in Israel today go to Israel to complete their study of the language, Pack said.

BYU did offer Hebrew before the early 60s, he said, but "it was a sometimes thing. When I took a class in the early 60s, there were only a few of us, and we had to make a special petition to the university in order to have it offered."

In the late 60s, after the Seven-Day War in 1967 and other similar incidents, demand to learn Hebrew began to pick up. Today there are 100 students in the department, Pack said.

There are many advantages to taking Hebrew, Ricks said. Not only does it fill the university foreign language requirement, but it also is an acceptable minor for students majoring in Near Eastern Studies or Near Eastern Studies education. It is a good minor for international relations students, as well as anyone planning to work in the Middle East, he said. He also said many law students who want an emphasis in international law find a knowledge of the language to be an advantage.

Many people who want to go into the CIA or other intelligence-gathering organizations study Hebrew, Pack said.

Ricks said, "It is essential to know Hebrew if you want a real understanding of the Old Testament. There are so many scriptures that do not come through in translation."

Surprisingly, there are few grammatical differences between Biblical and Mishnaic Hebrew and the modern form of the language. "It's because Hebrew was essentially unused for a couple of thousand years," Wright said.

"The differences are because many of the words and concepts we need today, such as refrigerator, television or balanced budget, just didn't exist 2,000 years ago," Ricks said.

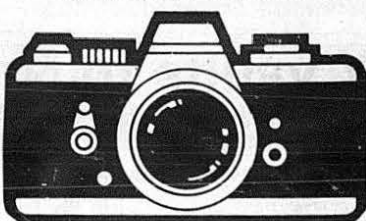

For nearly 2,000 years, Hebrew was unused by the general population. "For the most part, Jews used the local language in the area where they lived," Pack said.

Ordinary Jews who had had some education knew Hebrew to some extent, although they were usually not fluent. It was unused outside of the synagogue except for the rabbi or when two Jews who spoke different languages wanted to communicate — a use that is still current today.

Hebrew essentially remained a language for scholars and religious services until the early part of the 20th century, when Jews living in what was then Palestine "resurrected" it for everyday use.

Later, after Israel became an independent state, Hebrew became the official language.

Although Hebrew is a "resurrected" language, it was never a "dead" language like Latin, because it was always spoken to some degree, Pack said.

Y Games Center campus hot spot

Although the days of pinball machines have ended, the BYU Games Center is one of the most frequented spots on campus.

Manager Shaffer Bown said some of the entertainments available at the Games Center, located on the first floor of the Ernest L. Wilkinson Center, are billiards, bowling, miniature golf, video games, shuffleboard, table tennis and ice cream.

"People have called this place the 'hub of the campus,' and that may be true," said Bown.

Some of the most popular activities are bowling and video games, he said. The center keeps a weekly record of the popularity of video games, so those that are not profitable can be removed or altered. Many of the games come with optional adaptations that the staff can make, he said. The staff also accepts recommendations from customers for games that they would like to see added.

There will be no changes in hours, fees or setup of the center as the semester begins, but students will notice several video games have been added and the lighting in the billiards area is new since last year, he said.

Plans are also underway for improving the air conditioning and expanding the floor area of the center.

The center is open to students, faculty, alumni, guests of the university, and their families, Bown said. Most of the customers are students.

One reason the Games Center is such a center of activity is that it is rarely closed. Sundays and Christmas are the only days it does not open, and the hours are longer than usual on weekends during fall and winter semesters.

Dollar makes record in European markets

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar broke records across Europe Wednesday, smashing the psychological nine franc barrier in Paris. Dealers linked the surge to expected increases in U.S. interest rates and near certainty President Reagan will win a second term.

Gold slumped, finishing trading in Zurich at $328.50 an ounce, down three dollars from Tuesday's $341.50 close. In London, the precious metal slumped to $338.25 an ounce, down from Tuesday's $340.75 close. Sterling closed at an all-time low of $1.2815 to the pound, down from Tuesday's record low of 1.2915.

Dealers blamed the pound's bashing on deepening gloom about Britain's nearly 6-month old miners strike and the country's dockers strike as well as predictions of another upward turn for U.S. interest rates.

In Paris, the dollar closed at 9.0495, up from Tuesday's record of 8.9755. "It seems certain that the dollar will continue to rise," said Rene Gendron, financial analyst for a French television network.

Y vaults to No. 12 in rankings

(UPI) — The BYU football team vaulted into the No. 12 spot in the UPI Board of Coaches' rankings in the aftermath of their upset Saturday of then No. 7-ranked Pittsburgh. The Cougars were ranked No. 13 by the sports writers in the Associated Press poll.

The Pitt Panthers didn't fare quite as well. Coach Foge Fazio's squad plummeted in the rankings, barely hanging on with the No. 20 spot.

The Cougars could move even farther up the rankings ladder after this weekend's games, because three teams ranked ahead of BYU play other ranked teams.

No. 9 Michigan hosts No. 1 Miami and No. 11 Alabama will be at home to face No. 16 Boston College.

The defending national champion Miami Hurricanes, who knocked off two ranked teams within six days last week, leaped three places into the No. 1 spot in the UPI ratings.

Miami received 30 of a possible 35 first-place votes and 513 points to take a comfortable lead over No. 2 Nebraska (410), No. 3 Texas (337), No. 4 UCLA (330) and No. 5 Clemson (311).

Nebraska received four first-place votes. Teams receive 15 points for first-place votes, 14 for second, etc.

Miami claimed the top spot after running its nation-leading winning streak to 12 games with victories over preseason No. 1 Auburn and Florida. The Hurricanes edged Auburn 20-18 and topped Florida, ranked 18th in preseason, 32-20.

Auburn fell to sixth in the ratings, followed by No. 7 Penn State, No. 8 Ohio State, No. 9 Michigan and No. 10 Oklahoma.

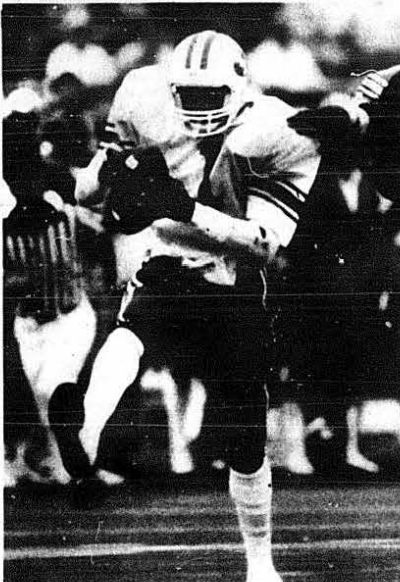

Rounding out the Top 20 are No. 11 Alabama, No. 12 BYU, No. 13 Arizona State, No. 14 Iowa, which received one first-place vote, No. 15 Notre Dame, No. 16 Boston College, No. 17 Southern Methodist, No. 18 Washington, No. 19 Florida State and No. 20 Pittsburgh.

Boston College scored four spots after a 44-34 win over Western Carolina. Miami and Clemson, a 40-7 winner over Appalachian State last Saturday, each jumped three places. BYU, unranked in preseason, made the biggest leap, all the way up to the 12th spot.

Florida State dropped out of the ratings following its loss to Miami. Georgia, which was 19th in preseason and hasn't played yet, also disappeared from the poll.

Including Michigan and Alabama, 11 Top 20 teams open their seasons this Saturday.

Nebraska hosts Wyoming. UCLA visits San Diego State. Penn State hosts Rutgers. Ohio State hosts Oregon State. Oklahoma hosts Stanford. Arizona State hosts Oklahoma State. Iowa hosts BYU's Adam Haysbert makes one of his nine receptions against Pittsburgh. The Cougars' big 20-14 victory vaulted them all the way to No. 12 in the UPI Board of Coaches poll.

Iowa State, Notre Dame plays Purdue at Indianapolis and Washington hosts Northwestern.

Also, Clemson visits Virginia and BYU hosts Baylor.

The Pac-10 and Big 10 are the most well-represented conferences in the Top 20 with three teams each. UCLA, Arizona State and Washington represent the Pac-don victory over Mats Wilander by beating the fourth seed 7-6 (7-3), 6-4, 2-6, 6-3.

There were no problems, however, for the two top women, Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd, nor for Ivan Lendl, the second seeded man.

Navratilova saw her service broken twice but still carried on for a comfortable 6-3, 6-3 victory over Helena Sukova, and Evert Lloyd defeated Sylvia Hanika, 6-2, 6-0, marking the 14th consecutive year she has reached the Open semifinals.

Lendl, never once losing his serve, disposed of fifth seed Andres Gomez 6-4, 6-4, 6-1, in a night match.

Networks delay Spinks rematch

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Those looking forward to a rematch between light-heavyweight champion Michael Spinks and Dwight Muhammad Qawi will have to wait longer.

Efforts to salvage Friday's title defense for Spinks fell through Tuesday when promoters could not line up a substitute fight because of television commitments.

Promoter Butch Lewis said KATZ television network could not work out arrangements in such a short span with network affiliates and sponsors. Television would have produced a major share of the revenue for the promotion.

Open play yields upsets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Teenagers Carling Bassett and Pat Cash and veteran Wendy Turnbull shook up the U.S. Open Tennis Championships Wednesday with stunning upsets that lifted them into the semifinals.

The 16-year-old Bassett, leaving a sick bed to play what she called the best match of her life, eliminated third seed Hana Mandlikova, 6-4, 6-3, while Turnbull, who is 31 and nursing a hamstring injury, overcame fourth seed Pam Shriver, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2.

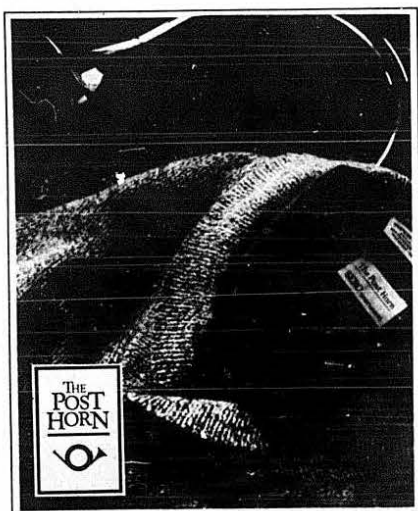

Cash, seeded 15th here although he also reached the semifinals at Wimbledon, repeated his Wimbledon victory over Mats Wilander by beating the fourth seed 7-6 (7-3), 6-4, 2-6, 6-3.

There were no problems, however, for the two top women, Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd, nor for Ivan Lendl, the second seeded man.

Navratilova saw her service broken twice but still carried on for a comfortable 6-3, 6-3 victory over Helena Sukova, and Evert Lloyd defeated Sylvia Hanika, 6-2, 6-0, marking the 14th consecutive year she has reached the Open semifinals.

Lendl, never once losing his serve, disposed of fifth seed Andres Gomez 6-4, 6-4, 6-1, in a night match.

Rebuilding continues at CSU

Coach Fuller tries to turn his team into a contender

Editor's note: This is the second of eight pieces in Western Athletic Conference football series. By SCOTT D. PIERCE Sports Editor

FORT COLLINS, Colo.—All football teams go through periods of rebuilding. But at Colorado State, Coach Leon Fuller is rebuilding more than just a team—he's reconstructing an entire program.

When Fuller was named head coach of the Rams Dec. 7, 1981, he inherited a team that had just set a record in futility. CSU's 6-12 record in 1981 marked the first time a college football team had ever lost 12 games in a season.

Running back Steve Bartalo surprised the WAC last season by leading the conference in rushing. The Rams hope to surprise the WAC again this year.

While their last two seasons certainly cannot be considered glorious, the Rams did manage four wins in 1982 and five in 1983.

Fuller has brought a new attitude to the CSU program, the players said.

"We've been working a lot on believing in ourselves and in the guy next to us," said tight end Harper LeBel. "It's a question of installing confidence."

"We used to be afraid of a lot of teams," he said. "Now, we're starting to say, 'Hey, these guys aren't that much better than us.'"

Running back Steve Bartalo agreed. "There's been about a 200 percent turnaround in the last year," he said.

"We're not where we want to be, but we're getting there," Fuller said. "Even though we lost some good athletes, I expect us to be a better football team. We have more depth."

The Rams will be without two of last year's top players, quarterback Terry Nugent and split end Jeff Champagne, both lost to graduation. Nugent set 24 school records during his career, and Champagne set a WAC record with 184 receptions.

Returning, however, will be last year's most pleasant surprise—fullback Bartalo (5-9, 185). The sophomore didn't even get in CSU's first two games, but made a big impression on the WAC during the rest of the season. In only 10 games, he rushed for 1,113 yards—tops in the conference.

"He's not very big, not very quick," Fuller said. "He just has the knack of going to the open area." Bartalo said his desire makes up for his lack of size and speed. "I just like to play football," he said. "I like to give 100 percent."

Another strong point for the Rams is their two tight ends—perhaps the best pair of tight ends in the conference. Seniors Kell McGregor (6-7, 252) and Harper LeBel (6-4, 244) combined for 125 receptions last season.

McGregor alone had 67 receptions, an NCAA single-season record for tight ends.

"They're both All-America candidates," Fuller said. "Bartalo is the quarterback position are sophomore Kelly Stouffer (6-3, 212) and senior Tom Threlkeld (6-6, 199)."

"We're going to let these two guys compete until the week before we go to Mississippi State, and then make a decision," Fuller said. "We do expect them both to play, though."

Colorado State has a number of experienced offensive linemen returning, including three players who have started at center at one time or another. "We have a lot of people returning," Fuller said. "We also feel we will have some strong backups at these positions."

Unfortunately for the Rams, many of the returnees didn't exactly sparkle last season. Despite having been Texas' defensive coordinator for five years prior to coming to Fort Collins, Fuller's offensive emphasis is right in step with the rest of the WAC.

"When I became a head football coach, my philosophy was to throw the football," he said. "I don't see us changing that. But we're going to run the ball too."

CSU's defense will be led by senior strongside linebacker Dan Fiala (6-4, 225). The three-year

Torch relay earns millions

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Nearly $11 million was raised for charity by the cross-country Olympic torch relay that brought Americans from their homes to flag-waving positions alongside the nation's roads, officials said Tuesday.

The chief beneficiaries of the 82-day run to benefit the nation's youth were the YMCA, Special Olympics and Boys and Girls Clubs of America.

"Long after the 1984 Olympic Games are just a memory, the torch relay will continue to live because of the youth sports programs that it will generate," said Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee.

"We hope these beneficiaries will do everything to maximize the funds so that the country will still benefit by it in the 21st century."

Pitt tries to forget loss to Cougars

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Pittsburgh quarterback John Congemi is through mourning the Panthers' upset loss to BYU, but he is not ready to forget it.

"We left a lot of doors open. We left a lot of questions unanswered," Congemi said Tuesday during an appearance at Coach Fazio's weekly news conference.

And Congemi, who suffered a hip injury during the home-opening loss to BYU last Saturday, said he hopes he and the rest of the Panthers can begin closing the doors and answering the questions in their next game, against Oklahoma Sept. 15.

"We're down about that (loss), but we're very excited about the Oklahoma game, because we have a lot to prove," Congemi said. "I'm ready to win. We haven't won in six months."

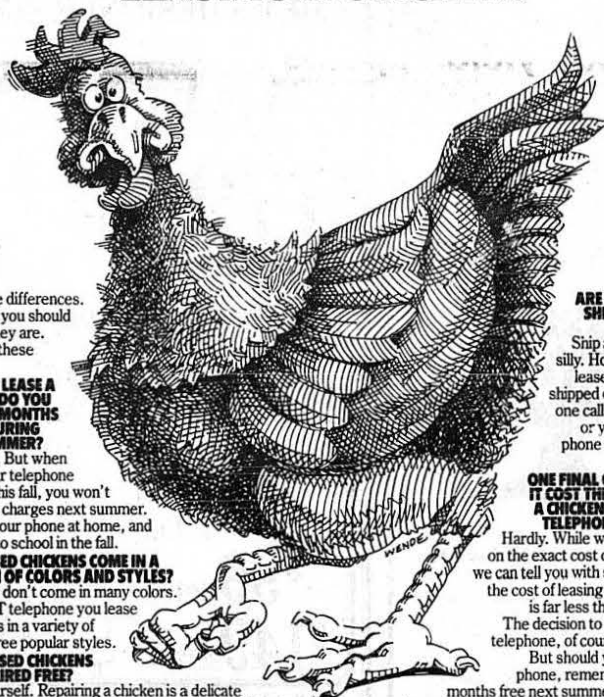

Congemi's comments were echoed by all of the Panthers' coaches, assistant coach Jim Fazio, safety Bill Callahan and punter Chris Jelle.

"From now on, after this news conference and today's practice, Brigham Young is history to us," said Callahan, who returned an interception 78 yards for one of Pitt's two touchdowns Saturday.

"We can't go back and undo what was done. We've got to get ready to face Oklahoma."

Fazio said he will try to keep the players from being "preoccupied" with the BYU disappointment while trying to use mistakes in that game as lessons for the future.

WHAT EVERY STUDENT SHOULD KNOW ABOUT THE DIFFERENCES BETWEEN LEASING A TELEPHONE AND LEASING A CHICKEN.

Yes, there are differences. And we think you should know what they are. Ask yourself these questions.

WHEN YOU LEASE A CHICKEN, DO YOU GET THREE MONTHS FREE DURING THE SUMMER?

Probably not. But when you lease your telephone from AT&T this fall, you won't pay any lease charges next summer. You can use your phone at home, and bring it back to school in the fall.

DO LEASED CHICKENS COME IN A SELECTION OF COLORS AND STYLES?

No. Chickens don't come in many colors. But the AT&T telephone you lease this fall comes in a variety of colors and three popular styles.

ARE LEASED CHICKENS REPAIRED FREE?

Don't kid yourself. Repairing a chicken is a delicate process that requires the work of expensive professionals. However, in the off chance your AT&T leased telephone needs repairs, we'll fix it absolutely free when you visit any of our AT&T Phone Centers.

ARE LEASED CHICKENS SHIPPED DIRECTLY TO YOU?

Ship a chicken? Don't be silly. However, your AT&T leased telephone will be shipped directly to you after one call to 1-800-555-8111, or you can pick up your phone at any of our AT&T Phone Centers.

ONE FINAL QUESTION: DOES IT COST THE SAME TO LEASE A CHICKEN AS TO LEASE A TELEPHONE THIS FALL?

Hardly. While we have no hard data on the exact cost of leasing a chicken, we can tell you with some certainty that the cost of leasing a telephone this fall is far less than you might think.

The decision to lease a chicken or a telephone, of course, rests with you.

But should you opt for the telephone, remember: you get three months free next summer, and you can take the phone home with you. There's a choice of colors and styles, free repair, and we'll ship you the phone or you can pick it up at any of our AT&T Phone Centers.

It doesn't cost much either. And that's something to crow about.

Y gets no respect from Pitt press

The BYU football players must have felt a little like Rodney Dangerfield in Pittsburgh before Saturday's game.

They didn't get much respect. "On the news one day I heard we were third-rate and we'd get blown out," said Cougar quarterback Robbie Bosco. "We had nothing to lose."

The Pittsburgh media seemed to have heard about the great BYU quarterbacks — at least the ones who've graduated — but didn't seem to realize there was an entire football team based in Provo.

A pre-game story in The Pittsburgh Press actually focused on a BYU defensive player, Jim Herrmann. Well, the interest in Herrmann was because he was facing Pitt's supposed all-world offensive lineman Bill Fraile.

Shocking request
The Press story began: "The request shocked the Brigham Young athletic department. Someone wanted to talk to a BYU defensive player. They have them, but no one has ever talked to one."

"The BYU defense has always been a necessary evil, placed on the field whenever the tail, strong quarter back is finished filling the air with footfalls."

Another Pittsburgh Press story tabbed the Cougars a "mystery" opponent. "Brigham Young is relatively unknown in the Northeast even though it has an 11-game winning streak, a 50-7 record over the last five seasons and six consecutive WAC titles." (That's eight consecutive titles, thank you.)

The paper also informed its readers that BYU played in the "weak" Western Athletic Conference, making the Cougars' success somewhat suspect.

An "expert" commentator on one of the local television news shows in Pittsburgh told his viewers about the facts of life in college football.

There are three divisions of teams at the top, he said. The first group consists of the best six or seven teams. The second group includes the teams down to about No. 16 or No. 17.

The third group consists of those teams that struggle to make it into the Top 20 each year, the TV sportscaster said. "BYU belongs in that third division, and Pitt will have no trouble with them."

This expert also predicted an easy win for the Steelers over the Kansas City Chiefs last Sunday.

The Steelers lost, 27-17.

Robbie Bosco and the offense got their share of credit following the upset of Pitt, and the defense made the headlines, but even in defeat the press attributed the outcome to the Panthers.

"BYU defense shocks Pitt," blared the headline in The Pittsburgh Press, but the emphasis was on how poorly the Panthers played.

The Press had another story under the headline "Pitt finds weakness in offensive offense." The writer saw the Panther's problem as an "almost complete lack of offense."

"The Panthers will have to go back to square one if they expect to get the offense moving this year," the sportswriter wrote.

From the story, it appeared the BYU defense did little in the game except watch the Pitt offensive players fall all over themselves.

Fraile's interview
Linebacker Bill Fraile was in the news in Pittsburgh quite a bit last week, and not all of the publicity was favorable.

An interview published in The Pitt News, the campus newspaper, revealed a side to Fraile the athletic department would just as soon have kept under wraps.

Asked what he liked to do in his spare time, Fraile responded, "I like to go play golf, go (expletive deleted) girls and get drunk." The entire interview was liberally sprinkled with expletives, which despite the use of dashes in place of the vowels, were readily identifiable.

Pittsburgh's sports information director issued a statement saying, "Bill Fraile and Joe Zeff (the reporter) are both college students who exercised bad judgment. I don't think it is indicative of the type of person Bill Fraile is."

Fraile told The Pittsburgh Press he didn't think the adverse publicity would hurt his chances of winning the Heisman Trophy.

"I'm not worried," he said. "Anybody voting for the Heisman must be an accomplished writer. I suppose they don't just send out ballots to guys from The Pitt News, do they?"

The interview should have no effect on the Heisman balloting. If a lineman were actually to have a chance at the trophy — a highly unlikely possibility — that lineman would have to be a member of an undefeated national championship team.

And after his team's 20-14 loss to BYU, Fraile doesn't have to worry about that either.

Coach says Rams on the road back

starter missed the first two games in 1983 with a nagging back injury, but came back to record 53 tackles, including 25 unassisted stops.

"We think he has a chance to be one of the top linebackers in the conference," Fuller said. "He's big, strong and runs well."

The defensive line is in much the same position as the offensive line. With a number of injuries, several all players get experience last year and many are returning.

"Basically, we'll return all the starters on the offensive line except the right end," Fuller said. The defensive backfield was extremely young last season, and the Rams coach is hoping they will benefit from a year's experience.

Avoiding injuries will be a key for CSU. A platoon of Rams went down in the first three games last season.

"At one point we had 23 players out — 18 for the season," Fuller said.

"We've got a lot of people coming back in a lot of positions," Bartolo said. "If we all stay healthy, we could have a really good year."

Healthy or not, Colorado State doesn't appear to have the talent to contend for the conference crown this season. A lot of players got in the games last year — and many are returning — but last year's team was nothing to get excited about.

And despite all the returning players, the loss of Nugent and Champine cannot be underemphasized.

Fuller is more optimistic about his team.

Meetings set for volleyball, lacrosse teams

Those interested in joining the BYU men's volleyball or lacrosse team should be aware of tryouts and meetings scheduled in the next few days.

A meeting for anyone interested in joining the lacrosse team is scheduled for today at 4 p.m. in 250 SFH.

The organizational meeting is for all new players, freshmen or anyone desiring to become involved with BYU's lacrosse program.

Practice for the lacrosse team begins Monday at 3:30 p.m. at the Desert Towers Fields.

Tryouts for the men's volleyball team is set for Monday between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. in the Richards Building. The spikers have several tournaments scheduled this semester, the first set beginning in October.

Anorexics starve for thinness, but their illness can be treated

By LESLIE B. THOMAS
Universe Staff Writer

Laurie Jones, a former BYU student, saw losing weight as an answer to all her problems. She is just one of many who have lived through an illness called anorexia nervosa.

An anorexic is a person who literally starves himself in an unrealistic and overzealous effort to become thin, said Dr. Maxine Murdock, former BYU psychologist, now in private practice in Salt Lake City. Murdock works primarily with anorexia and bulimia patients.

Many anorexics who look like "skeletons" to others still see themselves as overweight, and many starve themselves to their deaths, Murdock said.

"I felt like losing weight would be the answer to all of my problems, so I started to lose. People would come up to me and say, 'Laurie, you're so thin,' and it would make me feel all the more proud. So I kept on losing. I didn't see myself realistically and I still thought I was fat," Jones said.

As you get thinner you get positive reinforcement from society," Murdock said.

There are so many pressures in society to be thin, especially as women start to move up in social status. Upper class women are thinner," she said.

Murdock said studies show that in the last 20 years, American women have become bigger through better nutrition. Society, though, has despised women as thinner and thinner.

"So the disparity between society expectations and reality becomes greater," she said.

The researchers have planted the first generation of that nation and are evaluating it. In about three years the hybrid sagebrush will be ready for wider planting, McArthur said.

One of the differences between the two parent plants is the kind of essential oils they contain, a variable that can be predicted by aroma. Basin big sagebrush, which the deer avoid, has a high content of oils that give it a pungent, nasal-clearing smell.

Mountain big sagebrush, with a different complement of oils, has a more pleasing, camphor-like odor.

ter," she said.

"I can be seen by the death of anorexia nervosa victim Karen Carpenter. Quoted from Karen Magazine, an acquaintance recalled about the singing star, "Karen was psychotic about her weight. She had a classic pear-shaped figure. . . she was chubby and she was self-conscious about it."

"When I was growing up I was a little chubby," Jones said. "Other kids would call me fatty and so I started to feel everybody was better than me."

Society does stress thinness. Especially in females, Murdock said. There are many pressures and many of these pressures come from loved ones.

"Boyfriends who say you've got fat thighs, parents who say, 'Honey, when you go to BYU you'll never go out unless you lose ten pounds,' are statements that have been said to many anorexic girls. Thus, the tendency to become anorexic is increased," Murdock said.

Anorexics may also become fanatical perfectionists due to feelings of insecurity about themselves along with family and society pressures, Murdock said.

Many girls then try to become the "perfect" daughter or girlfriend that they feel they should be literally starving themselves.

Anorexia can be treated, though, and people can get over it, Murdock said. Help should be sought before a person gets too thin and permanent physical damage is done.

Recovery from anorexia is long-term, Murdock said.

Sagebrush may be tasty deer food

A food that tastes like ice cream but has the nutrients of spinach — imagine how the world would rejoice.

Though such a breakthrough isn't likely for human food, it's almost a reality for mule deer as a result of work by researchers at BYU and the U.S. Forest Service's Shrub Sciences Laboratory, adjacent to the campus. The lab is an arm of the Intermountain Research Station in Ogden.

Dr. E. Durant McArthur, an adjunct professor of botany and range science at BYU and project leader at the shrub lab, is hybridizing two kinds of sagebrush — one he knows is a favorite of mule deer and another he says is less tasty but far more nutritious.

The more palatable plant, called mountain big sagebrush, is found throughout the state of Utah, but a particular variety that grows in Hobbie Creek Canyon near Springville seems to have the best combination of taste and growth pattern. McArthur and his research associate Dr. Bruce L. Welch, also a Forest Service researcher and an adjunct professor at BYU, are taking that plant and hybridizing it with a species called basin big sagebrush, which is higher in nutrients but hard to eat.

The researchers have planted the first generation of that nation and are evaluating it. In about three years the hybrid sagebrush will be ready for wider planting, McArthur said.

One of the differences between the two parent plants is the kind of essential oils they contain, a variable that can be predicted by aroma. Basin big sagebrush, which the deer avoid, has a high content of oils that give it a pungent, nasal-clearing smell.

Mountain big sagebrush, with a different complement of oils, has a more pleasing, camphor-like odor.

Police warn students to take precautions against crime

By DEAN C. BARRY
Senior Reporter

With the start of a new semester, students and faculty members need to be aware of good crime prevention habits and techniques.

According to Sgt. Arnold Lemmon of the University Police, "Common sense is a good technique to practice. Do not leave personal belongings unlocked or lying around.

"Get a quality lock for your bicycle and lock everything up. We lose an awful lot of bicycles because people fail to lock them," Lemmon said. In the high theft areas — the testing center, physical education locker rooms and the library — students should be careful not to leave personal belongings lying there ready to be taken, Lemmon said.

All crimes should be reported to the University Police, Lemmon said. "We are concerned about crime prevention here at BYU. Whether a book gets stolen or a car, we want to know about it. Unless people report a crime there is nothing we can do about it," he said.

Other crimes that occur on this campus, although they are very minimal, are potential crimes or crimes against persons, Chief Robert W. Kelshaw said.

According to Kelshaw, there needs to be safety precautions taken against these types of crimes. People, especially females, should not walk alone after dark. They should schedule their times and visits away from their apartments with roommates or someone who knows where they will be at all times, Kelshaw said.

Women, Lemmon said, should walk in a well-lit area and make themselves aware of the emergency phones throughout the campus. The phones provide a direct line right to the police department.

Lemmon said, "The department really discourages hitchhiking, because that is a quick way to become sexually assaulted." He also encouraged female students to be wary of some modeling agencies that might exploit women.

This month the University Police will be sponsoring a self-defense session against sexual assault in all the dorms on campus, Lemmon said.

Kelshaw said police can be reached by calling 378-2222, or 911 in an emergency situation.

Bicyclers challenge Cal. police

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Campus police are wrestling with an influx of illegally parked bicycles — about 2,500 everyday — at the University of California.

A handicapped person was trapped inside a dormitory until a path could be cleared down the ramp.

Half the 5,000 bicycles are illegally parked on the Berkeley campus everyday, Guillermo Beckford, the campus bicycles officer, said Tuesday.

"What they want is a pole to lock their bike on and it doesn't matter what a pole is," he said.

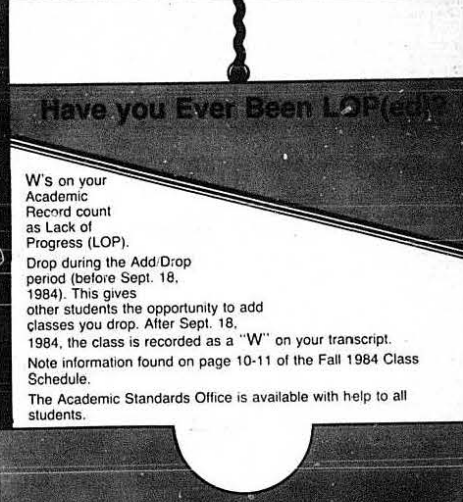

The school tried to solve the problem by establishing a new bicycle parking lot near the undergraduate library. But it is being widely ignored, officials said.

The lot's 400 spaces have attracted a daily average of only 40 bicycles.

"They want their bikes parked right where they go to class," Beckford said.

He said he will continue to slap tickets on illegally parked bikes but admitted they are somewhat of an empty threat because 80 percent of campus bicycles are not registered.

The next step, he said, could be impounding of the bikes by campus police if the situation does not improve.

Professor laments end of cowboy culture at Y

By JANALEE SMITH
Universe Staff Writer

When Dr. David C. Montgomery, professor of history, returned to BYU in 1970, he asked, "Where have all the cowboys gone?"

Montgomery said he first came to BYU as an undergraduate in 1957 from the suburbs of Chicago. He said he wanted to live among a large group of members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. At that time about 8,000 students attended BYU, and the cowboy element was very apparent.

"It took me two years to stop laughing when I saw all the cowboys. I thought, 'So these are the Mormons. Is this what my mother wanted me to be?'"

But, Montgomery said, he began to appreciate the Mormon culture. Now he looks back on those years as golden years. "The brightness was flourished by the cowboy culture."

Nobody was ashamed to be a cowboy, and the male students at BYU during his time wore blue jeans and flannel or Western embroidered shirts, he said. They wore big leather belts with carved decor and the name of the person toolied in the back. "The buckles were the size of hubcaps," he said. "I made it through school with two pairs of Levi's, three flannel shirts and a pair of moccasins."

Montgomery roomed with a cowboy from Montana. "He taught me how to turn single-syllable Anglo-Saxon words like 'yes' into two-syllable words like 'y-a-es.'"

Many students were dressed as cowboys seven days a week. But there were a lot of "closet cowboys" who donned Levi's and Western shirts only a few days during the week, Montgomery said. Most cowboy students came from rural areas and had many generations of Mormon heritage. They kept free from outside influences longer. The cowboys did not have a negative view of the LDS Church, he said. The faculty was permissive toward beards during those years, and many of the students also grew beards, Montgomery said.

One student had very long hair and a long, unkempt beard, but no one criticized him because they said, "That's his thing." One day he came to school clean-shaven with a haircut. He announced he was going to serve a mission for the LDS Church, Montgomery said.

Hairstyles and beards were not a part of BYU's standards until student riots threatened universities. Long hair was a sign of communistic revolution, he said. Drugs and rebellion were also associated with long hair.

The female students during the cowboy era wore tailored blouses and skirts with lots of pleats, he said. "Of course, all the cowboys and cowgirls wore cowboy hats and pointed boots. The attire worn by students while I was attending BYU is not seen here very much anymore."

American held as suspect in Montreal station bombing

MONTREAL (UPI) — An American living in Canada was jailed without bond Wednesday in the bombing of Montreal's main rail station that killed three people and injured 11 others. Canadian authorities said the suspect, Thomas Brigham, 65, is an American but they had not been able to determine his hometown. News reports, however, said Brigham was from Rochester, N.Y. Authorities said two strange, rambling letters apparently threatening Pope John Paul II — one delivered to Central Station before the Monday blast and another delivered to a hotel above the terminal shortly after the explosion — led them to question Brigham.

A coroner Tuesday ordered Brigham held without bond as a material witness, and authorities said he might be charged with the bombing. An inquest into the deaths of the three people was scheduled for Monday.

Material witnesses can be held for up to eight days without bail.

The pope, scheduled to arrive Sunday in Quebec City to begin an 11-day visit to Canada, is due to arrive Monday at Montreal's Windsor Station, about a block from Central Station.

The pope will stay at a church residence in the block between the two stations. A Vatican spokesman said the pope's schedule would not be changed.

In Cleveland, lawyer James Brigham issued a statement Tuesday saying he believed his father was the man held in Montreal.

Every Thursday was Blazer Day, when all the fraternities, sororities and other social units would wear skirts or pants with their club blazer.

"On this day the cowboy culture would manifest itself. They would show up the city folk by wearing their best hats, boots and buckles to counteract the social club," Montgomery said.

Many fun activities accompanied the cowboy element. One activity was a weekly Western dance in the Social Hall. "The music at the dances was usually provided by a band of students who were mainly from Arizona."

Every body wore his finest embroidered Western attire big hats and silver belts, he said. Girls were allowed to wear hip-hugger pants to dances. "We only paid a quarter to get in, but that was at a time when a large frosted mug of root beer cost a nickel. Now we pay more money for a warm paper cup full of root beer," he said.

Students would not take a date to the dances. "We would dance with anything on two legs. It didn't matter how old they were or if they were short, tall, fat, thin, cute, plain or what nationality they were. We don't find that now," he said.

Montgomery said there were few people on the sidelines, but if there were any at the side, they were guys. "The last dances were real clinchers, and we could always find someone to walk home," he said.

Every spring the university sponsored a Western Week. During the week the members of the faculty and student body competed in a beard-growing contest. They would begin growing their beards weeks ahead of time.

"Anyone without a beard or at least striving for a beard would be thrown into a jail set up on the quad. They were not freed until they paid a fee that was contributed to a student scholarship fund," he said.

A big rodeo was also part of the festivities. Girls competed for the title of Rodeo Queen. They were judged on their femininity as well as their horsemanship, roping and other skills.

"A great big honkin' Western Stomp in the east gym of the Smith Fieldhouse highlighted Western Week," Montgomery said. "It called for a Western Stomp because people literally stomp their feet and sing along. They whoop and holler for sheer delight," he said.

People brought guns loaded with blanks to the Western Stomp. They had quick-draw gunfights and fired at the ceiling, he said. One year a wagon pulled by a team of mules drove through the middle of the dance. "They were terrific occasions," he said.

"Somehow we've lost that unique part of American culture," Montgomery said, adding that Americans are becoming a predictable, homogenized culture group.

The world is in the electronic age of entertainment, he said. "Society is turning into cultural spectators instead of cultural participants."

"I have not seen him, but my family has not seen him but once in the last eight years," said James Brigham of Richmond, Ohio. James's Brigham's mother, Marjorie, of Mentor, Ohio, said her former husband, a Thomas Brigham, moved to Canada in 1975.

Records at the Lake County Courthouse in Palenestine show that a Thomas Brigham took a wife Marjorie in 1945, and the couple divorced in 1976. They had 11 children.

"My dear man, I have 11 children, many grandchildren, lovely friends. I am not that person," Brigham said before entering the corner's court when asked by a reporter if he planted the bomb in a luggage locker at Central Station.

Police said the gray-haired Brigham was detained because he was suspected of writing two hand-printed, barely coherent letters found by authorities.

One of the letters, delivered to a ticket agent at Central Station Friday, threatened to "kill pope" and noted a time and date, 9:30 a.m. Sept. 8, 1984, less than an hour before the bomb exploded at 10:22 a.m.

A second letter written with the same block lettering entitled "A parable of Job" was found by police in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel above the station after the bombing. It praised the "valiant death" of the victims killed in the blast.

Brigham termed the timing of the letters and the explosion "a coincidence."

Infant death rate average reaches all-time Utah low

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Despite one of the country's highest birthrates, Utah's infant death rate has dropped to an all-time low of 8.7 per 1,000 births, which is 26 percent below the national average — an improvement officials attribute to better health care.

Still to be unexplained, however, is why the death rate took a sudden but slight rise in 1982.

John Brockert, director of health statistics for the Utah Department of Health, said the death rate for 1983 had dropped by 21 percent since 1982, when the rate was 11 per 1,000, and by 34 percent since 1969.

YOU'LL BE AMAZED

Does it seem that by the time you work your major classes into a schedule there is no time left for GE classes? Don't worry about it. We have over 100 courses that can be used to fulfill your GE requirements. Call 378-2568 for more information or pick up a free catalog at the Bookstore, the EMAC Information Desk, the ASD Information Desk, 206 HCEB, or at your college advancement center. You'll be amazed at what Independent Study can do for you, too.
